On village land near Tok, the Peak gold deposit is accessible from the Alaska Highway by a 9-mile industrial road. Excavation began in 2023, and ore was delivered for processing at Fort Knox, owned by one of Manh Choh's joint partners, Kinross Alaska. The ceremonial pour of a 600-ounce brick on July 8, 2024, marked the official start of production. The open pit mine is expected to operate for four to five years, employing up to 500 people through contractors Kiewit, Arctic Catering & Support Services, Afognak camp maintenance, and Black Gold Transport.
